Enchanting Aegina Island day tour from Athens (11hr)

A surprisingly unspoiled island escape!

This beautiful island, beloved of Zeus and blessed with a rich history, gives a great taste of all other Greek islands. Unspoiled landscapes, 19th-century charm, lovely beaches, and an outstanding cultural tradition in fine arts and handicrafts are what make Aegina a favorite getaway just a short ferry ride from Athens!

During the tour you will:

- Visit the Temple of Aphaia, one of ancient Greece's most graceful monuments
- Swim at a beautiful island beach, followed by lunch at a family-run seaside taverna
- Try your skills at traditional local craft-making or learning traditional folk dances
- Discover hidden corners and enter locals' homes and workshops

The trip to Aegina, an island steeped in historical significance, begins with a ferry ride to the island, a relaxing and enjoyable crossing during which you can loiter on deck and watch the playful seagulls or duck inside for morning refreshments in the ship's comfortable lounge.

Upon arriving at the port of Aegina, we will head straight to one of the island's traditional houses; this one has been transformed into a café, where we'll enjoy local delicacies and fresh homemade lemonade in the charming courtyard.

After this refreshing pause, it's off to a lovely modern sculpture Museum with breathtaking views, to quickly view works by an internationally acclaimed modern Greek sculptor, and to hear how he was inspired by the mythology and the art of ancient Greece. From here, we'll head inland to the ruins of the island's medieval capital, Paleochora, which is said to have once boasted 365 churches.

Further east lies the Temple of Aphaia, dating from approximately 500BC. It is a remarkable edifice, perfectly placed to afford a stunning view back over the island and down to the shoreline, which is where we'll head next, for a swim at one of Aegina's prettiest beaches. The swim will be followed by a delicious lunch at a local seaside taverna offering authentic island cooking.

Once the meal is done, it's back to the port town for a wander through the colorful alleyways and a taste of some Aegina pistachios, the island's most famous agricultural export. Then we'll meet some of the island's women that still hold alive its traditions and we'll find out about the long tradition of arts and crafts that the residents here still maintain; you'll have the chance to try your hand at lace-making or if you prefer something a little more lively, there will be an opportunity to learn a traditional folk dance!

As the music fades and you finish dancing, your day in Aegina will be at an end, but on the evening boat ride back to Piraeus, you'll have plenty to look back on from your all-day island adventure.

A Dazzling Day Trip to Hydra Island from Athens (11hr)

A great cosmopolitan island escape, with pristine beaches, stunning architecture, and international cultural allure!

Less than two hours from Piraeus, the island of Hydra is an ideal day-trip destination.

Completely traffic-free (no cars or scooters), the port town is positively charming, thanks to the magnificent 18th-century mansions lining the steep streets that rise up from the harbor's edge. The stunning beaches are tranquil, laid-back locations and the island is full of history and cultural charm.

Enjoy a Scenic horse ride around the island of Hydra.

Water taxi round trip from the center of the island to a secluded beach and back.

Sightseeing in a historic location, an important center of activity during the 1821 Greek War of Independence.

What a way to spend your day away from the crowded city center!

At the port of Piraeus, you'll board the Flying Dolphin for a quick and comfortable hydrofoil ride to the harbor town of Hydra. Once you reach the island you'll be amazed by the local landscape that has made it a favored retreat of jetsetters and rock stars such as Maria Callas, Leonard Cohen, Eric Clapton, The Rolling Stones, Picasso and many more.

Then it's time to saddle up for a family-friendly ride through the town's different neighborhoods, because the best way to explore Hydra is on the back of a horse, the island's traditional means of transportation (no cars allowed!).

After your ride through town, you'll return to the harbor to board one of the island's famed water taxis, the easiest and the most exciting way to reach the island's best beaches. Foremost among these is Plakes Beach, equipped with sun-loungers and umbrellas, where you'll be heading for hours of fun in the sun and the crystal-blue sea, as well as a delicious lunch at the seafront taverna right at the water's edge.

Following lunch, it's back to Hydra Town for a second trip, this time on foot, down the maze-like side streets and by-ways where you'll spot artists' workshops, stylish boutiques, and a number of well-preserved historic residences, some of which, once owned by important figures in Greece's 19th-century struggle for independence, are now museums. Hydra has evolved into a cultural hub, where innovative exhibits, hip happenings, and events with international appeal attract famous visitors from all over the world each summer.

Your stroll will end at a family-run pastry shop that's famous for the local sweet (made from almonds) known as amygdalota, and for its rich and delicious homemade ice cream. As you finish your treat on the shaded veranda of the pastry shop, you'll be ready to leave the island with more than just a sweet taste on your lips; you'll have the long-lasting memory of a special day spent on this little gem of an island.

Please note that some changes to the itinerary may be necessary between Nov-Mar.

Free day in Sifnos

Among the Cycladic islands, Sifnos stands out for both its architecture and natural beauty. Once a thriving gold and silver mining location, it has, since ancient times, cultivated a reputation for the finer things in life. Today the island combines the picturesque with a rich tradition in cuisine and crafts, along with a high-level infrastructure in tourism. Despite its refined culture and "Cycladic chic" ambiance, Sifnos retains a low profile that instills peacefulness in the visitor.

The island offers a wide array of beaches, from Panagia Chryssopigi, where you can dive from rocky ledges to more organized swimming at Kamares, Platys Gialos, and Vathy. For those who prefer to avoid crowds, there is Fykiada, accessible on foot, while if you rent a yacht or have your own the island has multiple small, secluded natural bays to enjoy.

The town of Artemon is defined by its beautiful neoclassical homes and well-tended narrow streets, while its surrounding villages stand out for their whitewashed courtyards, the deep colors of the bougainvillea, and the finely crafted terracotta chimney tops on the roofs.

Traditional cuisine on Sifnos includes chickpea soup made in ceramic bowls, mastelo (lamb or kid baked-on vine branches), and salad with capers.

A swim at the quaint little ancient port of Seralia can be followed by a seafood hors d'oeuvre, and later on by a walk up to the medieval settlement of Kastro (Castle) with the Venetian loggias to see the sunset and finally, you can wrap up an eventful day with Sifnos' rich nightlife.

Apollonia also offers plenty of choices for entertainment, as well as more traditional pursuits, especially the island's church festivals (panigyri), which are accompanied by food for all and music – the island even has a name for locals who organize the festivals (panigyrales). If you go to the island in September, you will catch the annual Cycladic Gastronomy Festival, named after its native Nikolaos Tselementes, a renowned chef in Greece forever synonymous with the Greek cookbook.

Like a gracious cosmopolitan hostess who also follows local tradition, Sifnos is an island of opposites that work together and provides a mix of people and lifestyles without losing its balance.
